Hello,

Below is the information I obtained during a pharmacy call today regarding this clinic. I have reported this information in Phoenix for the call on Publix Pharmacy. Please let me know if I also need to submit an additional ADD form.

"Pain Express Rx Clinic. Dr Cynthia Sadler is the physician and her DEA # is FS0024175. The clinic has an in-house pharmacy. The patients are only coming into Publix to fill prescriptions when the clinic runs out of a drug. Publix received numerous prescriptions for 15mg oxycodone IR. When they called the clinic to question the prescription they hung up on pharmacist. There have been numerous complaints about illegal activities, drug deals going on in the clinic parking lot. It is reported that the clinic closed last week. I drove by it and the signs have been taken down. The owners were interviewed on local news and said they would just move somewhere else to re-open."

They are no longer accepting prescriptions from this clinic. I checked the Georgia Medical Board website and the doctor's Georgia License number is 030874. She is listed as an OB-GYN.

Please let me know if I may be of further assistance.

Sincerely,

Lori

Yes. We need to try to find out the prescribers name. Maybe a pharmacy can tell us.

Hi Jane,

She has reported it to her and brought this to my attention.

Should she forward this to Joan as part of her reporting?

Thanks,

Yes—this is the same office. I still don't know the doctor's name unfortunately. Shall I forward this article to Joan?

Hey Lori,

Is this the office you were talking about?

Please confirm Jane's request.

Thanks,

I hope we haven't called on this office. If we have, please have Lori report into Joan the prescribers.

Pain Clinic In Kennesaw Belongs To Brothers Who Are Currently Under Investigation In Florida

Pain Clinic In Kennesaw Belongs To Brothers Who Are Currently Under Investigation In Florida
WSB-TV (GA)

New at 6:00, Kennesaw police are keeping a close eye on a new business. The pain clinic on Cherokee street opened a few weeks ago and prompted a flood of complaints from neighboring businesses, and the two brothers who own the clinic currently are under federal investigation.

Channel 2's Ross Cavitt is live in Kennesaw with why the brothers may have chosen their newest location.

A lot of folks I talked to today cannot believe something like this is legal, but apparently you can walk into the Pain Express here in Kennesaw with your various maladies, see a doctor, get a prescription written, get the prescription filled and come out with an armful of painkillers like OxyContin.

With all the out of state visitors coming here and now the federal investigation in Florida, police and others think something is not right.

Since the Pain Express clinic opened last month, business has been booming to the point where the parking lot often fills up.

Even with the clinic closed today and our news van parked in front, potential patients still came in - all from out of state - none of them wishing to stop and chat with me.

Kennesaw police responding to complaints from nearby businesses have heavily patrolled the area. That's about all they can do.

Pain Express is apparently the latest venture of twin brothers Chris and Jeff George. They own several pain clinics in Florida and federal agents raided three of them just a few days ago, looking for evidence of money laundering and illegal distribution.

Georgia essentially has no prescription drug regulations, which has attracted the George brothers - although their patients are not very welcome.

And for some reason there's a sign on the door that says the clinic is closed until Wednesday.

There may be an effort to close the loopholes in Georgia's laws. Senate Bill 418 called the Patient Safety Bill, would provide for monitoring of these kinds of prescriptions. But because of privacy concerns it is less than certain that bill will pass.
